

All courses are subject to change.

Check the NIH website for the most current information

www.nih.org

NO PRE-REGISTRATION REQUIRED

COURSE TITLE: Early Recognition of Shock in the Hospitalized Patient

DATE: Wednesday, June 16, 2010

TIME: 1400 - 1600

PLACE: NIH Board Room

INSTRUCTOR: Martha Reynolds, RN, MICN

CONTACT HOURS: 2

FEE: $10 payable at the time of the class. No fee for NIH/MH employees or if continuing education credit is not desired. A refund will be given when applicable.

COURSE DESCRIPTION: This course is designed to provide the participant with an overview of the types of shock, abnormalities in the presentation of shock in the hospitalized patient and the diagnostic approach.

COURSE OBJECTIVES: At the conclusion of this course the participant will be able to:

1. List three types of shock.
2. Describe two factors that impact the presentation of shock in the hospitalized patient.
3. Name the assessment priorities in the early recognition of shock.
4. Discuss the diagnostic approach to the patient with changing assessment findings..

EVALUATION OF STUDENT: Class Participation

Provider approved by the California Board of Registered Nurses, Provider #02458 and EMSA/ICEMA provider # 62-0079 for (2) contact hours. Provider approved for California Licensed Clinical Laboratory Personnel by Accrediting Agency #0138 for (2) contact hours. This course meets the requirements for CE for RCPS in California. (2) contact hours.